BASKETBALL WARRIORS ARE REGULAR SEASON CHAMPS

PRESIDENT'S CORNER

MAY TERM III

One of the imperatives of modern liberal arts education is to maintain enough resiliency in these times of quick-changing pressures to approach the process dynamically while still retaining a modicum of conservatism to preclude capricious changes simply for the sake of change. The MAY TERM 1974 catalog, which is featured in the center section of this issue, is an excellent example of such a well-planned approach to educational change.

Now in its third year, MAY TERM reflects the dedicated, imaginative efforts of faculty members to create interesting and meaningful courses to meet student needs and implement our fundamental approach to higher education. The courses have been well-planned educational experiences rather than hastily-conceived projects. Student response has indicated solid, germane, enjoyable learning rather than superficial exposure to desultory topics.

The wide variety of courses offered vividly illustrates the multitude of interests that a liberal arts approach to higher education can generate and build upon. Many courses give students experiences which graphically reveal the applicability of liberal arts subjects to life. They expose both faculty and students to new learning environments, both on and off campus.

The MAY TERM, new internships which are being developed, and the increasing number of Independent and Established Interdisciplinary majors are just a few indicators of renewed interest and determination on the part of faculty and students who want to make college education more significant and useful.

HAROLD H. HUTTON
President of the College

THE D. CHESTER RYAN BAND LIBRARY was formally dedicated at a premiere concert performed on January 24th, in Clarke Chapel. Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Ryan, brother and sister-in-law of the late D. Chester Ryan, were special guests of the college at the dedicatory concert which featured compositions from the 900 set collection. Mr. Ryan donated his brother's music collection to Lycoming after being impressed with the band's performance in Syracuse.

R. BUCKMINSTER FULLER, world citizen, opened the Colloquium on Cultural Survival to an over-capacity crowd of 1,000 in D-001. Every square inch of surface was occupied by attentive listeners who heard Dr. Fuller chart man's evolution from the discovery that he could cup his hand to more efficiently get water into his mouth to quench his thirst, to the threshold of being able to provide enough of all life's necessities for everyone if he only makes the choice to do so.

For almost two hours, Dr. Fuller weaved the fabric of his concluding thesis, "I now know from all my actual studies and experiments that it is now highly feasible to take care of all humanity at a higher standard of living than anyone has ever experienced, and to do so by 1985, and to do it without anybody profiting at the expense of anyone else. The old working assumptions of limits are invalid. Rather, man is designed for success..."

"We are now at the point of breaking out of the shell—together. Evolution is bringing us to some kind of new relationship. What Abraham Lincoln thought might be happening one hundred years ago might now be coming into ascendancy. We are in for rapid change, for revolution of the highest order.—If it is bloody its all over for everybody; or it will be a great design revolution which will involve everyone learning to stop this nonsense about earning a living and to start committing ourselves to the needs of all humanity.

"This beef between the ears must be either mind or muscle. If it is muscle, we are all through."

"WE'RE NUMBER ONE!", chanted a happy and triumphant student body that had jammed into old Hilltop Gym on February 13 to see the Warrior basketball team tangle with Albright to decide the regular season championship of the Northern Division, Middle Atlantic Conference.

They were right! Lycoming is Number One. Partisan crowds help win ball games, and there was little doubt that the cheering throng spurred the Warriors of Coach Dutch Burch in an 80-76 victory that brought the conference crown to Lycoming for the first time in nearly a decade. It also gave the Warriors a shot at the overall conference championship and a possible spot in the N. C. A. A. playoffs.

The Warriors, led by two seniors, Rich Henninger and Steve Cogan, broke away to an early lead in the first half only to have the Lions roar back late in the period to grab a 36-34 edge at halftime. The hungry Warriors then put the game away with thirteen consecutive unanswered points to open the second half. Despite some anxious moments late in the game, Lyco hung on to win by the four-point margin.

Cogan was the big difference in the thirteen-point spurge. The 6-5 center, with the softest shot this side of UCLA, hit five field goals from around the foul circle early in the half, and the die was cast.

Henninger, the Warriors' outstanding four-year veteran and all-time scorer (See related picture on page 3), scored 25 points and Cogan added 20. Both Albright and the Warriors ended the season with identical 8-2 conference records, but Lycoming is the regular season champion because ties are broken by the won-lost record against one another.

The Warriors, noticeably "flat" following the pennant winning game with Albright, dropped the final three contests on the regular season schedule for a 13-8 record going into the playoffs.

As this issue is being written the Colloquium on Cultural Survival has gotten underway with Buckminster Fuller's keynote address last evening. The ideas came fast and furious, new ones stirring up old ones--softly delivered, firm challenges to use man's capacities for humanity instead of the quest for selfish gains motivated by the gross misconception that there is not enough of anything for everyone.

We hope some way can be found to publish the address so that we who were privileged to hear him can have the opportunity to confront his thoughts at a reduced pace and to share them with those who could not be there.

Buckminster Fuller is neither prophet of doom or Pollyanna. Rather, he is a presenter of bold ideas backed by facts and solid accomplishments. His prime concern is to make individuals realize that all mankind can be a success beyond all expectations if we only believe it and start working unselfishly for that goal. Only timid, lazy, self-centered men characterize such ideas as utopian and label them impractical to implement. Only myopic vision and selfish concern stand in the way of responding to Bucky's challenge to be free with our ideas and energies.

On behalf of all of us who heard Dr. Fuller, I want to thank Dean Buckle, Professor Rux, and all those from the community and the college whose hard work made his visit and the colloquium possible. And thanks for the financial sponsorship of the college, the S. and H. Foundation Lectureship Program, and the Public Committee for the Humanities in Pennsylvania.
J. P. L., Jr.

In the October 1973 issue of the "LYCOMING" the "Editor's Notepad" column suggested that readers might want to use the publication as a means of communication among its many readers.

To repeat the proposal--"A Readers' Page to do with what you want, within the bounds of propriety, ethics, and space. Anyone would be welcome to write a short article, essay, letter, etc.--say with a limit of one column the size you are now reading. Or you could place an ad one inch long using the size type used for 'CLASS NEWS' --about seventy-five words or less.

"Topics can be anything you have on your mind or want to bring to people's attention. Maybe you have an idea to share or a cause to support. Is there a position you have to fill or talents you have to offer to fill one? Are there services you need or ones you can supply? Are there products you want to buy, trade, sell, rent, borrow, give away, get for free, or find out about? Anything from trading homes with a fellow-reader across the state or the country (for a vacation or for keeps), to finding someone with a special talent in or information about an area you are interested in. All for free.

"There must be all kinds of needs out there among you 10,000 + readers and an abundance of talent and ideas to meet those needs. Let's try getting at least some of them together."

THE CONCERT BAND will give its annual spring concert on April 2 at 8:30 p.m. in Clarke Chapel.

A CO-OPERATIVE ROTC PROGRAM with Bucknell University has been endorsed by the faculty whereby Lycoming students can voluntarily enter the U.S. Army Military Science Program at the Lewisburg institution. Male and female students who are accepted into the program will participate in certain activities at Bucknell. If a sufficient number of Lycoming students enroll, some of the classroom portion of the program will be taught on the Lycoming campus by the Army personnel at Bucknell. Lycoming students will be eligible for the same financial support as Bucknell students, and those who successfully complete all requirements, including summer work, will be commissioned as second lieutenants upon graduation.

"ASK ME ABOUT MY COLLEGE" PROGRAM HAS GOOD START -- MORE CAN PARTICIPATE

Thus far the "Ask Me About My College" program has received seventeen responses from interested people in nine states. Personalized posters and college materials have been sent to Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Maryland, New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, and Wisconsin. Participants include teachers on various levels, dentists, a physician, a lawyer, a minister, an insurance agent, principal, reading consultant, and several who have not indicated their occupations.

Dr. Donald E. Shearer '59, who is AMAMC co-ordinator, emphasizes the fact that "Lycoming can never have too many alumni and friends recommending it to potential students. Hundreds of locations throughout the fifty states would play an important part in spreading the good word about Lycoming College."

If you work in a place frequented by high school youth or their parents, we will be happy to prepare a personalized poster for your office, waiting room, or other appropriate location. For parents we can change it to read "Ask Me About My Son's or Daughter's College" if you wish.

Dr. Shearer feels that, "There are many students who want to attend a good, small institution but have never heard of Lycoming. They live in areas which are never or infrequently visited by our admissions staff because of time and economic factors. Some information and a personal word of endorsement from someone who personally knows the College may be all that is needed."

If you are interested in joining Don and these seventeen spokesmen for Lycoming please send this coupon to:

CAMPUS NOTES

JOHN G. HOLLENBACK, associate professor of business administration, recently spoke on "Sources of Business Information" at a pre-business workshop sponsored by the Small Business Administration, SCORE, and the Williamsport Chamber of Commerce.

LOGAN A. RICHMOND, professor and chairman of accounting, recently gave an illustrated talk on "Public Accounting As A Profession" to over thirty-five students at North Penn High School in Blossburg. Earlier he had spoken about "Tax Tips For Teachers" to the Jersey Shore High School faculty.

TERRY WILD, part-time art instructor, had thirty-four photographs, including landscapes, tinted prints, and portraits, on exhibit at Bucknell during January.

THE BLOODMOBILE had a very successful visit to the campus on February 19th. when 163 pints were collected and sixteen donors were deferred.

FOUR COUPLES DANCE 28-HOUR MARATHON: Linda Klein '75 of Emmaus and Mark Davies '74 of Allentown were among four couples finishing the twenty-eight-hour dance marathon and were declared the winners by virtue of being the top vote-getters at 1C a vote. The fund-raising affair, which garnered $250 for class treasuries, was held from 10 p.m. Friday, February 8th to 1 a.m. Sunday.

Also going the distance were Vivian Tarazi '77 of Westwood, New Jersey and Charles Traetto '77 of Morris Plains, New Jersey; Constance Eddy '76 of Waynesboro and Timothy Brandt '76 of Middletown; Jan Priestly '75 of Yorktown Heights, New York and Robert Hutchinson a non-student from Montoursville.

DOWNSTAGE THEATRE continues its season in the lower regions. BRIAN LEONARD '77, a theatre major, will direct Omne Vivum Ex Vivo and Midnight Sun on March 29, 30, and 31. KATHY KENNEDY '75 has translated A List of Good Deeds from the Russian as a College Scholar project. It will be produced on April 5 & 6.

THE ARENA'S fourth show of the season, Spring's Awakening, will be given April 12, 13, and 17 thru 20. PEGGI MONTGOMERY '74 is designing and constructing the costumes as a special studies project.

Seniors, in addition to Henninger and Cogan, who capped their intercollegiate careers by winning the championship include Tom Beamer, Jim Kelley, and Lou Hilf. Beamer and Kelley started all twenty-two games along with Henninger and Cogan. The fifth man in the starting rotation was sophomore John DiMarco, the backcourt sparkplug who sat out the final four games because of a leg injury. His absence hurt the Warrior attack.

Points contributed by the five starters include Henninger, 525; Cogan, 303; Beamer, 261; Kelley, 245, and DiMarco, 137.

Coach Burch will have a complete rebuilding task next year with the nucleus expected to be DiMarco and two freshmen who played well in reserve roles. Jim Coyle, a 6-3 guard-forward, filled in for the injured DiMarco at the end of the season and scored in double figures in all four games. Jeff Billman, at 6-6 the tallest man on the squad, also contributed substantially to the winning season.

WRESTLING

Despite more than the normal amount of injuries that plagued Coach Budd Whitehill's wrestlers throughout the season, the Warrior grapplers compiled a fine 14-7-1 record to mark the 17th consecutive year Whitehill's teams have finished .500 or better. Lycoming's only losing season came in the first year of intercollegiate competition when the team had a 2-4 record.

Whitehill also passed a milestone of his own during the season when the Warriors swamped Messiah College, 47-6, to give the only mat coach Lycoming has ever had his 150th victory. He ended the season with 153.

Injuries to such outstanding key veterans as Wayne Goodrow (190) and Dan Hartranft (167), along with a rash of ailments among some of the younger wrestlers, probably cost the Warriors several matches. A total of 26 men competed in at least two dual meets as Whitehill juggled his squad throughout the season to place a complete team on the mats. The final two losses to Elizabethtown, 24-15, and Lebanon Valley, 20-19, could possibly have been turned into wins if the Warriors had not had to forfeit (12 points) two weight classes because of injuries.

RICH HENNINGER '74, the most prolific scorer in Lycoming basketball history, is congratulated by Vince Leta '54 who held the previous record of 1,880 set twenty years ago. Rich passed the 2,100 mark going into the playoffs. The next issue will include an article covering Henninger's contributions, honors, and achievements during his four years at Lycoming.

Goodrow, who had compiled a fine 36-7 career mark going into his final year, underwent a preseason leg operation for a football injury and did not compete until past the midway mark on the schedule. He added 5 wins and a loss for a final 41-8 record. He was also the defending Middle Atlantic Conference champion at 190 but finished third in the 1974 tournament.

Hartranft, who is a junior, was injured in the first meet of the season and did not return to last year's form, when he was 10-5, until late in the year.

One of the highlights of a season in which the Warriors met a number of major universities came in a quadrangular at the University of Maryland when Lycoming defeated the University of Delaware and tied the strong host Terrapins, 15-15.

In addition to Goodrow, Whitehill will also need a replacement next year for Steve Wiser, another outstanding senior at 177. Wiser completed his career with a fine dual record of 38-10-5. Also graduating will be Angelo Fanelli, who had not wrestled since his freshman year at Lycoming. Fanelli was 3-1 last season as a heavyweight.

SWIMMING

Jeff Rauff, in his first year as men's varsity swimming coach after replacing his father, Mort, last fall, did not have a winning debut (1-10) but his inexperience and thinly manned squad never gave up and was in contention until the final whistle in all but several of the meets.

Some of the close matches included 52-40 losses to both Kings and East Stroudsburg and a 56-47 defeat by Wilkes. The only win by the Warriors was a 65-26 victory over Western Maryland.

Some of the more consistent winners for the Warrior mermen were Steve Marshall and Lee Murray in the freestyle events; Mike Shissler in the breaststroke; Greg Bowers, backstroke, and Todd Wynn, butterfly. Wynn and Marshall are seniors.

The women's varsity swimming team under the direction of Donna Miller fared better than the men with a 3-5 mark. They recorded a victory over Bloomsburg and subdued Mansfield twice. Losses were to Franklin and Marshall, Elizabethtown, Lock Haven, Dickinson, and Bucknell.

Some of the top winners were Lynn Martin, freestyle and breaststroke; Chris Colby, freestyle and butterfly; Ellen Sharkey, backstroke, and Debbie Harrison, freestyle.
